

juice of Durva grass, Kampilla, and the paste of Darvi-tvacha is one of the most potent healing remedies in ulcer cases.

CHAPIER CXCIV.

DHANVANTARI said:—Now hear me, O Sushruta, discourse on the nature of the medical treatment to be adopted in cases of sinus. Sinuses should be first opened with the knife, after which remedial measures mentioned in connection with ulcers should be employed.
A medicated Ghritam cooked with the admixture of Guggula, Triphali, Vyosha and Minsa cures sinus, fistula in ano, bad or malignant sores, as well as colic. A medicated oil cooked with the admixture of the expressed juice of Nirgundi cures sinuses, and malignant ulcers; used both internally and« externally this oil proves efficacious in Pfma. Pills consisting of three parts of Guggulu, five parts of Triphala", and one part of Krishna prove curative in cedema, intestinal glands, baemorrhods and fistula in ano. In cutting of the vein of the penis, as well as-in syphilis, suppuration of the sore is to be primarily guarded against in as much as suppuration in these cases may ultimately lead to the sloughing off of the organ. A decoction of Guduchi, Maricha, Nimvaand Patola leaves may be advantageously given with catecfiu and bdellilium in Syphilis. Burn down Triphala to ashes in an iron pan, charred Triphala" applied with honey to syphilitic sores brings about their healing almost that very day.

A medicated Ghritam cooked with the admixture of a decoction or paste of Triphala", Nimba, Bhuniimba, Karanja, and Khadira proves curative in syphilis and in diseases of syphilitic origin. In a case of fracture of the bone, the
